INCENDIARISM IN ERIN; BELFAST OUTLOOK GLOOMY

Churchill Says Government Is Considering Martial Law

ANOTHER LONDON PARLEY

Both Sides Send Delegates To New Peace Conference

(China Press Service)

Belfast, March 28.—Incendiarism was added to the horrors of factional strife today. Firemen from every station were busy throughout the night fighting flames.

They saved considerable property, but many buildings were destroyed including two stores, a flour mill, a jam factory.

(China Press Service)

London, March 27.—Speaking to the House of Commons, today, Secretary Churchill said that the situation in Belfast was far worse than in all the rest of Ireland. The Government, he stated was prepared to consider martial law with military authorities to enforce it.

Ulster's acceptance of the invitation to the Irish Conference to be held here tomorrow has cleared the way for an attempt on the part of the Government to bring the northerners and southerners to some accord on a peaceful basis.

Messrs. Griffith, Collins and Duggan will represent the South while Mr. Craig and some of his ministers will uphold the northern viewpoint. Efforts will be made to induce these leaders to declare a truce along the border to afford opportunity for the discussion of the frontier.

Neither the North or the South seems willing to confer and the meeting is looked upon by both sides as a great concession.

Dublin, March 27.—The staff of the brigade headquarters at Athlone has refused to obey orders and has left the barracks. Members of the staff assert that they no longer owe allegiance to the general headquaters but recognise only the new executive committee elected here Sunday. The enlisted men are still loyal.

TARIFF REVISION MEETING OPENS HERE TOMORROW

Twenty-one foreign members of the Commission on Tariff Revision, created as a result of the Washington Conference, are already in Shanghai to attend the formal opening of the conference to be held at the Chinese General Chamber of Commerce on Friday. These represent Great Britain, Japan, France, Belgium, Italy, Portugal, Denmark, Holland, Brazil and Norway. The American and Swedish delegates are on their way. Two more Japanese delegates are reported to be coming.

Most of the delegates are members of the Consular and diplomatic services in China. No date is yet announced for the first business meeting of the conference, which will take place at the former Portuguese Consulate on Bubbling Well Road. The building is being overhauled and it will be at least one week before it can be used.

Ratepayers' Association Scores Lengthy Speeches Of Municipal Officials

Meeting Urges Abolition Of Chairmen's Reports At Yearly Assembly Of Electors; Wants Press Admitted To Council Sessions

Resolutions regarding the admission of the press to Council meetings, condemning the reading of lengthy speeches at the annual ratepayers' meeting and calling upon the Council to devise means for relieving traffic congestion in the Settlement were passed yesterday by the Shanghai Ratepayers' Association at that body's annual general meeting. Though the press bye-law which will be presented by the Council for passage at the forthcoming meeting was not taken up officially by the Association, Mr. Francis Zia, representing various Chinese publishers organisations, presented the case for them and asked the aid of the ratepayers' body to defeat the measure.

The meeting was presided over by Mr. A. J. Hughes, president, who in his annual address urged the necessity of ratepayers taking a greater interest in municipal affairs in view of the growth of the Settlement and the increasing difficulties thereunto attendant.

COMMITTEE ELECTED

The following were elected to serve on the new committee: Dr. N. L. Downs, Rev. W. Robbins, Messrs. Isaac Mason, Sidney J. Powell, Dr. Stafford Cox, R. V. S. Rnmble, O. Okamoto, J. B. Powell, G. Peet, Cecil Holliday, P. W. Goldring and A. J. Hughes. A resolution was then passed increasing the annual subscription from $2 to $5 and the chairman then spoke in support of the resolution regarding press admission to Council meetings. He urged it as a measure tending to increase public interest in municipal matters and declared that as things stand at present electors could not but continue to be ill-informed on vital issues. The Council could safely rely on the test of public opinion, he held, in view of the general high average of intelligence and education of the ratepayers.

The resolution, as presented and passed, reads as follows:

"That in the opinion of this meeting it is desirable that representatives of the press should be admitted to full meetings of the Council, subject to withdrawal at the request of the chairman only when matters relating to land purchases or involving political issues are to be discussed, and that the committee of the Ratepayers' Association be and is hereby requested to prepare a resolution embodying the opinion expressed in this resolution to be submitted at the forthcoming annual meeting of ratepayers."

WANT SPEECHES SNUFFED

There was considerable discussion of the next resolution, relating to the doing away of the lengthy speeches given by the chairman and the chairman of the Electricity Committee at the ratepayers' annual meeting, the resolution, presented by the Rev. W. Robbins and seconded by Mr. Vlioudaki, being passed in the following form: "That in the opinion of this meeting the reading of the reports of the Chairman and the chairman of the Electricity Committee and other committees at the annual meeting of ratepayers is neither necessary nor desirable and should be discontinued and that such reports should be printed and circulated among the electors a few days before the meeting, and that the Committee prepare a resolution to this effect for presentation to the annual ratepayers' meeting."

The resolution regarding traffic congestion, proposed by Mr. Gilbert E. Peet and seconded by Mr. Sidney J. Powell, was as follows: "That in the opinion of this meeting the Council should devise means for relieving the traffic congestion either by an immediate extension of the tramway system or by adopting other means of transportation, together with the opening up of alternative routes by means of which the population can be moved to and from the business center more expeditiously. This meeting suggests that this end could best be achieved by securing the co-operation of the Chinese authorities controlling the districts adjacent to the International Settlement and the authorities of the French Concession with a view to a comprehensive scheme for road and transport inter-communication, and in view of the substantial benefits which would accrue to both the Chinese and foreign population alike a conference should be called of the various

U. S. Note To All Allies Gives Details Of Claims For German Payments

Hughes Sets Forth Exact Basis On Which American Contention For Occupation Payments Rest—Cites Armistice Agreement

(Reuter's Pacific Service)

Tokio, March 28.—The following is the text of the identic note from the American Government to the Allied Powers, on the subject of the claim for payment for the armies of occupation. The note was handed to Count Uchida, Minister of Foreign Affairs, by the American Ambassador on Wednesday afternoon, March 22.

"The Government of the United States has believed and still believes that the Governments of the Allied Powers have no disposition to question the right of the United States to be paid upon an equal footing with them the actual cost of its army of occupation which it has maintained in Germany since the joint armistice agreement of November 11, 1918. While the attitude of the Government of the United States in expecting full payment of these costs has been repeatedly set forth, it is deemed to be appropriate, in view of recent developments, to make this statement of its position.

"The amount of the claim of the United States for its army costs is understood to be well known and to be free from any substantial dispute. According to the information and accounts in the possession of the Allied Governments it appears that the total costs of all the armies of occupation from November 11 1918 to May 1 1921 amounted to 3,639,282,000 gold marks; that the amounts due to Belgium, France and Italy (?) for their army costs for that period have been paid in full (chiefly through deliveries of property) and that the unpaid balance of army costs due May 1 1921 amounted to 1,660,090,000 gold marks due to the United States and the British Empire as follows: United States 966,374,000 gold marks, British Empire 693,716,000 gold marks.

PAYMENTS TO BRITISH

"It is understood that between May 1, 1921 and December 1, 1921 the British Government received cash payments as against this balance of about 130,669,000 gold marks. In view of the position taken by the Government of the United States this payment was expressly made and received subject to the rights of the United States.

"In November 1921 the commission appointed by the Supreme Council to give its opinion on the expenses of the armies of occupation made a report dealing with the Army costs since May 1, 1921. This included calculations in respect to the American Army, and its actual costs since that date were included in the proposed provision for payment pari passu with the other Powers.

"It had been supposed this report to the Supreme Council would be presented to the Conference of Ambassadors and would pave the way for suitable action with respect to the American Army costs both current and accumulated. It was with surprise that the Government of the United states recently learned that negotiations, in connection with and following the meeting at Cannes in January last apparently contemplated the substitution for the recommendation of the Army Costs Commission of other arrangements which would ignore American Army costs altogether, although estimates both for Army costs and Reparations were being made on the basis of the entire capacity of the German Government to pay.

"When it came to the notice of this Government that it was proposed that the meeting of the Finance Ministers to be convened at Paris on March 8 definitely to assign the greater portion of the amount heretofore paid in cash by Germany and not yet finally allocated to the payment of Army Costs without making any provision for those of the American, it was deemed advisable again to direct attention to the position of the United States. The Government of the United States has been advised that all the arrangements of the Finance Ministers have been made subject to the rights of the United States and that these Ministers have also suggested that the Government of the United States should take up the question directly with the Governments concerned.

ARMISTICE AGREEMENT

"The Armistice Agreement concluded between the Allied and Associated Governments and Germany on November 11, 1918 provided for military occupation by the Allied and United States forces jointly and it was expressly provided against 'The upkeep of the troops of occupation in the Rhine districts (excluding Alsace-Lorraine) shall be charged to the German Government.'

"It is not believed that the meaning of this agreement can be regarded as doubtful. It had not only its express provision but its necessary implication. It is the view of this Government that, and it is confidently believed that it is the view of all the Governments concerned, that this agreement on the part of the Allied and Associated Governments with Germany, and with each other, had the clear import that the Powers associated in this joint enterprise should stand upon an equal footing as to the payment of all the actual costs of their armies of occupation and that none of the Powers could consistently with the agreement for a preferential or exclusive right of payment. Further it is assumed that it would not for a moment be contended that any of the Allied Powers would have been entitled to enter into any arrangement by which all the assets or revenues of the German Empire and its constituent states would be taken for their benefit to the exclusion of any of the other Powers concerned.

"It was apparently in recognition of the existing and continuing obligation as to army costs that in the Treaty of Versailles in undertaking to place 'a first charge upon all assets and revenues of the German Empire and its constituent States' (Article 248) priority was given to the total cost of all armies of the Allied and Associated Governments in occupied German territory from the date of the signature of the Armistice.

"By the treaty between the United States and Germany signed August 25, 1921, the ratifications of which were exchanged on November 11, 1921, it is provided that the United States shall enjoy the rights and advantages stipulated for the benefit of the United States in the Treaty of Versailles notwithstanding the fact that the Treaty has not been ratified by the United States. The Government of the United States accordingly entertains the view and submits it to the consideration of the Allied Governments that the United States is entitled to payment of the costs of its Army of occupation pari passu with the Allied Powers and that payments from Germany in the circumstances disclosed cannot be used to the exclusion of the United States without its consent.

"The Government of the United States is unable to conclude that the justice of its claim is not fully recognised. The Governments of the Allied Powers will not be unmindful of the fact that the Government of the United States has repeatedly and earnestly been solicited not to withdraw its Army of Occupation and this Army has been continued upon the basis of the right to be paid its actual cost upon an equal footing with the Allies. But while it is believed that the Allied Governments cannot fail to appreciate the manifest equity of the claim of the United States, it is understood that it has been suggested that there is every

Easy Lay The Crowned Head That Chose Summer Home

By Elsie McCormick

There is one great advantage in being a king. You have no arguments with the wife over where you are going to spend the summer. Royal families have always been equipped with summer palaces, which puts an effective end to the resort argument common in non-royal households. This custom of having a vacation residence is a great boon to monarchs, for though the king stands higher than the queen in a poker game, it doesn't follow that the same situation holds outside the deck.

Even Chinese rulers recognised the advantages in having permanent summer homes. The fact that there was an empress and several sub empresses, each with different ideas about how to spend a vacation, made such establishments an urgent necessity. We can imagine the Lady of the Phœnix holding out for the seashore, while the Jade Concubine, who didn't look too well in a bathing-suit, insisted on a summer in the mountains. The only solution that the Emperor could think of was to build Yuen Ming Yuen at a point that was neither mountains nor seashore, and provide the household with one-way tickets.

FOREIGNERS INTERESTED

Though summer palaces for the reigning house were built and destroyed in China with a considerable degree of regularity, the first one to hold any interest for foreigners was Yuen Ming Yuen, begun by the second Manchu Emperor a few miles out of Peking. When one of the Jesuit fathers happened to show his successor, Chien Lung, some pictures of Versailles, the Emperor decided that he had found his ideal summer bungalow and ordered the priests to co-operate with his workmen in reproducing it for him.

This was considerably more than the good fathers had bargained for. In vain did Father Benoist protest that his knowledge of fountains was confined to baptismal fonts; Chien Lung nominated him for the post of reproducing the playing waters of Versailles and would accept no resignations. Father Castiglione, who was an artist with the brush but not essentially an architect, was given the modest little task of copying the Versailles pavilions with the assistance of a Chinese corps who had never seen that kind of a building. We can imagine just what the conscripted Jesuits thought of their brother who had shown the Emperor those picture postcards of the French monarch's home.

WHAT PRESSURE DOES

It is astonishing what can be accomplished under a little pressure—the pressure, for instance, of wishing to make an Emperor a Christian and of knowing how much cemetery space was occupied by those who had failed to carry out his desires. Father Benoist succeeded in bringing water from the clear green Jade Fountain in the hills beyond the palace, arranging tumbling little cascades, and building a water-clock, which roughly indicated time by twelve different animals, each one of which spouted water for a period of two hours. Aided by pictures and a good memory, Father Castiglione made plans for marble pavilions, French doorways, and grand staircases that would have produced pangs of jealousy in the soul of Louis XIV and covetousness in the heart of a Hollywood moving-picture director. He supervised everything from the foundation of the marble piles to the delicate tracery of leaves that mark the capitals of the Grecian columns.

It is difficult to decide whom to admire most, the priests who with no special training as architects, designed a copy of one of the most elaborate buildings in Europe; or the Chinese artisans who carried out so faithfully the plans for a type of architecture with which they had had not the slightest experience. Together they produced the Yuen Ming Yuen, the Bright Gardens of Peking, which were dynamited about 1860 by foreign soldiers in revenge for an Emperor's treachery. The patient planning of the Jesuit fathers, the exquisite workmanship of Chinese builders, and all the delicate furnishings of ivory, blackwood, jade and pearl were destroyed together in a blast of dynamite that reverberated from Peking to the Western Hills.

LOOTING TABOO

Unfortunately the foreign troops were forbidden to loot. Even an undiscriminating soldiery might have thus rescued works of art to enrich the collections of the world. Only the merest handful of jewels and porcelains were saved from among the unnumbered treasures of the Summer Palace. We saw European tapestries on the walls of the museum in the Forbidden City, and we have read of the Gobelin products sent by the French Court for the rooms of Yuen Ming Yuen, but whether or not they are identical seems to be a matter for disagreement. Their patterns represent Chinese life as pictured by untravelled French artists—hence a lady eating with a chopstick in either hand, Chinese gentlemen sitting cross-legged on cushions like comfortable Turks, and grandes dames of the court wearing the coiffure of Versailles combined with an Oriental costume unlike anything ever worn in the whole history of the Middle Kingdom. Undoubtedly Chien Lung and his courtiers enjoyed many a quiet snicker when the Jesuit fathers happened to be absent from the palace.

ARTISANS GONE

The great tragedy of the wholesale destruction at Yuen Ming Yuen lies in the fact that the age of handicrafts is for-

LAST RITES TO BE HELD TODAY FOR MRS. SNYDER

American Woman, Victim Of Korean Slayer, To Be Laid To Rest

INQUEST IS HELD

Japanese Court To Try Two Assailants Who Have Confessed

Final rites will be held at 4 o'clock this afternoon at the chapel in Bubbling Well Cemetery for Mrs. Grace Snyder, wife of Mr. William Snyder, the American woman who fell victim to the fury of two Korean assassins when they sought to kill Baron Tanaka on his arrival here on Tuesday afternoon. Members of the party of eight that last October set out from New York on a tour of the world—a Raymond Whitecombe party—are remaining in Shanghai to pay the final honors to the traveling companion they have lost. Mr. Snyder will not proceed with them, but will remain in Shanghai and will return to the United States on the Admiral Line steamer Wenatchee on April 9. Mrs. Snyder's remains are to be cremated.

Six American residents of Shanghai sitting as a jury before United States Commissioner Schuhl heard a summarised review of the circumstances of the tragedy yesterday afternoon. As the men accused are Japanese subjects and therefore subject to Japanese legal procedure, the action taken yesterday before the American tribunal is but preliminary and formal in character. Representing the Japanese Government Mr. J. Noda, Japanese Vice-Consul, and Mr. Z. Kobayashi, Police Inspector of the Japanese Consulate, attended the hearing.

MEMBERS OF JURY

Dr. W. T. Findley acted as foreman of the jury and those who served with him were Messrs. F. A. Bowen, R. S. K. Irvin, F. W. Van Buskirk, F. W. McIntyre, and J. S. Potter. The verdict that was given at the conclusion of the hearing is as follows:

"We, the jury, find that the body examined by us at the General Hospital, Shanghai, China, at 4:45 o'clock p.m. on the 29th day of March, 1922, to be that of Mrs. W. J. Snyder, and that she came to her death by wounds in the right chest resulting from three bullets fired from an automatic pistol, the shooting taking place outside of the Customs shed on The Bund, Shanghai China, about 3:20 p.m. on March 28, 1922, death following in about half an hour at the General Hospital."

Only an outline of the incident which has shocked all Shanghai was given in the course of the testimony at the hearing and a completer hearing is to be held in the Japanese Consular Court probably today when the two assailants will be arraigned on charges of murder.

The two Koreans, who have given the names of 'An' and 'Kim,' as disclosed in the testimony given yesterday, both have frankly admitted their guilt. In view of this it is thought that the swift outcome of the hearing before the Japanese Consular Court here will be that the two will be ordered to face trial on the capital charge before a higher Japanese Court at either Nagasaki or at Kobe.

H. Y. MOH AGAIN HEADS AMERICAN COLLEGE CHINESE

Cotton Magnate Re-elected At Annual Meeting Of Club Last Night

The annual general meeting of the American Returned Students' Club was held last night at the club house, P60 Nanking Road. Officers for the ensuing year were elected and the revised constitution as presented by the committee on the revision was adopted. The reports of the president, the secretary, the treasurer and the business managers were accepted. Mr. H. Y. Moh, the cotton mill owner, was re-elected president of the club.

Officers of the club for the ensuing year elected at last night's meeting are: Mr. H. Y. Moh, president; Mr. S. C. Chu, first vice-president; Judge T. S. K. Loh, second vice-president; Dr. John Y. Lee, secretary; Dr. Ellis Woo, assistant secretary; Mr. T. P. Hsi, treasurer; Dr. W. S. New, assistant treasurer; Mr. L. C. Yen, business manager; Mr. Ming D. Wong, assistant business manager.

The meeting decided to invite the returned Chinese girl students as well as the wives of the members of the club to the reception to be held in honor of Dr. J. G. Schurman, United States Minister, on Saturday morning at 10:30 o'clock at the club rooms.

Last Rites Today For Mrs. Snyder

hai police at yesterday's hearing and the first two witnesses were two Chinese constables who told of the circumstances of the shooting, the hearing of the shots and the subsequent pursuit and capture of the fugitives.

Dr. J. B. Fearn, Superintendent of the Shanghai General Hospital and Dr. T. B. Dunn were the physicians who attended Mrs. Snyder after she had been hurried to the hospital on the Astor House baggage lorry from the jetty and they told briefly of the nature of her wounds and of he death shortly after she arrived at the hospital.

For the purposes of the future prosecution of the two assailant particularly valuable testimony was given by Mr. E. D. Burgh Lewis, representative of the Raymond, Whitcombe Company, in charge of the tour of the eight travelers.

Mr. Lewis told of the incidents of the landing of the party and the particular portion of his testimony that is to be presented before the Japanese Court was his statement that he could positively identify the man whole shots caused the death of Mrs. Snyder. Mr. Lewis heard the first shot fired, he said, and turned about in time to see the man with the weapon aiming it deliberately as he fired four more shots. No trace of hesitation or excitement was discernable, in the man's action, Mr. Lewis testified.

USED DUM DUM BULLETS

Of particular value also was the testimony of Detective Inspector Reeves who produced in court the two weapons used, one 32-calibre Colt automatic and the other a 25-calibre Browning automatic. Inspector Reeves also produced nine rounds of catridges taken from one of the two prisoners for the Colt weapon and eight rounds for the smaller weapon which was found in the possession of the other of the two prisoners.

How deadly was the intention of the two Koreans was made evident when Inspector Reeves pointed out that the bullets in the ammunition that was recovered had been split in such fashion as virtually to make dum dum bullets of them. Any wound inflicted by such a bullet would be far more serious than from an ordinary charge of the pistols.

At the conclusion of the hearing Inspector Reeves said that the two suspects still are being held by the authorities of the International Settlement for further inquiry into the case and therefore the time of their hearing before the Japanese authorities here has not yet definitely been fixed. His testimony concluded the hearing.

POLICE INQUIRY PROCEEDS

Police inquiry into the circumstances leading up to the shooting at the Customs jetty and in the downtown streets Tuesday afternoon brought forth little more information concerning the Koreans, Kim Eak Song and Au Soong Nyuin, than was published in yesterday's issue, though the theory was developed during the day that the men may have been connected with other crimes committed in Shanghai.

The sensational attempt at daylight robbery on North Honan Road last Monday, which resulted in the death of a barrow coolie who was transporting 25,000 silver dollars, is one offense which it was believed might be credited to the captives and other members of an organised gang. Another is the murder, early in February, of the Korean Kim Yip, who was dragged out of his home in Chapei and shot to death by four of his countrymen. Kim Yip, it was alleged in written denunciations discovered later by the police, had received a large sum of money from Bolshevik supporters in Siberia to devote to the Korean independence movement and it was said that he had misappropriated these funds.

The two Koreans are still being held by the Municipal police pending the conclusion of their investigation and they will then be turned over to the Japanese authorities.

Possibly the most important development of the day was the implication of a third man, whose name was found on several pieces of correspondence belonging to the two assassins. Efforts were immediately begun to ascertain his whereabouts and it is possible that an arrest will be made today.

The other victims of the assassins' pistols, Mr. H. A. Thompson, the Chinese constable and the two Chinese coolies, were said yesterday to be virtually out of danger. Mr. Thompson is the most seriously injured of the four, being shot through the chest, but he was resting easily last night, it was said, and his recovery is believed to be merely a matter of time.

U. S. Note To Allies For German Payment

probability of technical difficulties which stand in the way of its recognition. While willing to take into full consideration every possible question, this Government is unable to find any such technical obstable.

"It is assumed that if any technical question were raised, it would be based upon the fact that the United States has not ratified the Treaty of Versailles. It may be pointed out however that Germany has explicitly consented to the priority of payment of the cost of the American Army of Occupation notwithstanding the fact that the Treaty of Versailles has not been ratified by the United States. Hence any technical objection to the application of the payments made by Germany to the discharge of the just claim of the United States for the cost of its Army of Occupation on the ground that the United States has not ratified the Treaty of Versailles would without restriction rest not upon any claim, action or lack of action on the part of Germany, but solely upon the refusal of the governments of the Allied Powers themselves to permit the discharge of an admittedly equitable claim and thus to seek to maintain in their behalf exclusively a first charge upon all the assets and revenues of the German Empire and its constituent States for demands exhausting the full capacity of the German Government to pay. The Government of the United States thinks that such an attitude on the part of the Allied Governments would be inconsistent. The Government of the United States believes that its right to priority of payment for its actual army costs upon an equal footing with the Allied Powers is not in any way affected by its failure to ratify the Treaty of Versailles.

AMERICAN PRIORITY

"The right of the United States to share in this priority was not expressly conditioned and, in view of the nature of the claim and of the fact that the Treaty purported to create a first charge upon all the assets and revenues of the German Empire, should not be construed as being conditioned upon the ratification of the Treaty by the United States. It may be noted that the Treaty was to come into force on the ratification on the part of Germany and of three of the principal Allied and Associated Powers. By Article 251, quoted above, there is provision for priority of the 'cost of the Army of Occupation' during the armistice and its extension and the cost of 'any armies' of occupation after the coming into force of the Treaty. This would seem clearly to embrace the cost of the Army of Occupation maintained by the United States.

"The Government of the United States believed that its right to be paid the actual cost of its Army of Occupation pari passu with the cost of the armies of the Allied Powers is not only a clearly equitable right, but is free from any technical objection.

This Government will welcome any suggestion from the Allied Governments for the reasonable adjustment of this matter.

"Upon receiving assurances of payment this Government will be only too happy to proceed to the consideration of suitable means by which its just claim may be satisfied. Pending such consideration and adjustment this Government earnestly hopes that the Allied Governments will be disposed to refrain from giving effect to any arrangements for the distribution of cash payments received from Germany to the exclusion of the claims of the United States."

Ratepayers Score Lengthy Speeches

councils, boards and authorities concerned to discuss the matter."

SPEAKS ON PRESS ISSUE

After the resolution had been unanimously passed Mr. Zia addressed the meeting as follows:

"Mr. Chairman, members of the Ratepayers' Association: Gentlemen: As I know you are pressed for time, I shall make my message as brief as possible. But it is so important and so closely related to the cause of publicity which you have pledged your Association to support, that I feel I am more than justified to ask you to give me about five minutes of your valuable time in order to appeal for the moral support of an organisation that stands for progressive and representative municipal administration in this Settlement.

"Gentlemen, I am appearing before you as the representative of the Chinese Publishers' Guild, the Chinese Publishers' Association, the Association of Chinese Newspapers of Shanghai and the Shanghai Publishers' Union.

"You have no doubt read the text of the proposed 'printed matter' bye-law, and you have presumably read our protest against its introduction because of its harmful effects as a blow to freedom of speech, which, you will grant, is a sacred right that must be safeguarded in every civilised community, and which sacred right, we Chinese, like you foreign gentlemen, under your own laws, are entitled to enjoy under the provisions of the Constitution of our Republic. Nobody can blame the Council for its anxiety to guard against the spread of seditious literature in the Settlement. But when we find that crimes of sedition are punishable under the Criminal Code of every nation, and when we find that all that the Council can reasonably demand is that 'printed matter' should bear on it the printer's name and address, we are a hundred times justified to oppose the contemplated action of the Council in proposing the said 'printed matter' bye-law, because the Council has acted in a manner that meets with no justification whatsoever either in the light of the Shanghai Land Regulations, by which the Council's actions must be governed, or in the light of the law governing the registration of regular publications as enforced in every civilised country throughout the world.

"We maintain that the action of the Municipal Council is wrong for two main reasons: First, what the Council should introduce is a new regulation and not a new bye-law. The Council should only introduce bye-laws in order to enable it to carry out more effectively the provisions of the Land Regulations; but it has no legal right whatsoever to introduce a measure of the nature of a new regulation under the cloak of a bye-law.

"Secondly, the Council should only require registration, if at all, in the case of newspapers. A newspaper is a publication that appears at regular intervals, and as such might be required to be registered in order that its proprietors might be held responsible for offences which a newspaper is capable of committing, but it is a direct blow to freedom of speech when a municipal council requires the author of every piece of printed matter in the nature of a circular, pamphlet, handbill, leaflet, or placard to register himself on the same basis as if he were a newspaper proprietor.

"The registration of newspapers does not impose any restriction on freedom of speech because it is impossible to exercise any censorship on what a newspaper wishes to say, unless the press is to be licensed, which is a measure that will not be tolerated in a civilised community. But registration of a pamphlet or a circular does mean limitation or forfeiture of the right of freedom of speech. To say nothing of the obvious impossibility of securing registration except during the hours within which the Municipal Council's office is open to the public, the very fact of registration in such cases brings in the element of censorship of public speech, if not its total suppression. When the registration is being effected, the applicant for registration is made to reveal to the Council the nature of the matter which he wants to publish.

"It is repugnant to the sense of justice for the Municipal authorities to decide on their own responsibility what is fit or unfit for public publication. The end of justice is completely served by guaranteeing freedom of speech on condition that a speaker is made to go through a procedure whereby he will be prevented from evading responsibility for what he has said or written, and thus making him amenable to the criminal laws prescribed for offences in the nature of defamation. That is why we say registration should be confined to newspapers only while 'printed matter' should be subjected to the obligation of containing thereon the name of the printer.

"Gentlemen, you will thus see that while the Council would be acting rightly if it merely seeks to create a regulation requiring the printing of the printer's name on 'printed matter,' it is a case of fundamental violation of the Shanghai Land Regulations for the Municipal Council to attempt to make every author of any kind of 'printed matter' assume the role of a newspaper proprietor, and that by introducing a regulation under the guise of a bye-law.

"You will remember that in 1919 the Council tried to introduce a bye-law for licensing the press so that it would have powers to send inspectors to visit the press room, etc. That bye-law was passed at the annual ratepayers' meeting but it was 'killed' by the Consular Body and the Diplomatic Corps because of its interference with freedom of speech. Now the proposed printed matter bye-law in its existing form can reasonably be interpreted as a revival of the 1919 attempt in a new form because it will restrain freedom of speech by requiring uncalled for registrations. All the Council needs to do is to introduce a regulation to enable it to trace the authors of inflammatory literature, and the criminal law will take care of the rest."

CHINESE FAVOR PLAN TO MEET RICE SHORTAGE

Council's Suggestion To Bring Supplies From South Is Favorably Received

That the Municipal Council is cognisant of conditions attending the increasing price of rice is to be gathered from a communication addressed to the Chinese General Chamber of Commerce, published in the current issue of the Municipal Gazette and it is probable that some remedy for the present situation will be afforded by the action taken.

The communication of the Council sets forth that it appears that the increase in the price of rice "can be attributed in some measure to a decline in the supplies which reach Shanghai from Zangchow, Liyang and Wuhu, where, it is alleged, hoarding, in anticipation of higher prices is prevalent."

Mr. Y. H. Yang, Secretary of the Chinese Chamber of Commerce replying, takes up a suggestion made by the Council in its letter advising rice importation from the South.

"The local Chinese authori and merchants," Mr. Yang says, "have proposed to raise a fund to import rice from Siam and Saigon for cheap sale." This proposal was taken up at a recent meeting of the Chinese who are supporting the plan.

IMPORTANT TALKS TO BE GIVEN WHEN ENGINEERS MEET

Among the important papers to be read at the Spring Convention of the Chinese and American Association of Engineers are the following:

Mr. Tse Tsop-ki will present the subject of "Engineering Projects and Development of Canton and Vicinity." At this time, when not only the actual accomplishment of Canton along the lines of improvement are coming to the attention of the public, but also their future projects are even on a larger scale, the society is unusually forfunate in hearing from Mr. Tse, who is in the closest possible touch with this work.

Along this same line of development Captain Von Heidenstam will present a paper on the "Development of the Port of Shanghai." Residents of Shanghai appreciate fully the great service that is being done by this development, but as the proposals are taking concrete form, few subjects could be more timely than the actual presentation of the growth of this port, and plans for its even larger usefulness.

"Mining Laws" will be presented by Mr. Terrill, who as mining expert in the University of Peiyang, comes from a section of China where gold mining is being done on the most modern basis and where all types of minerals are being mined to an extensive degree. Concrete suggestions as to the modifications of mining laws, so as to encourage this most important line of Chinese development, are to be expected from this speaker.

Mr. D. E. Douty comes quite recently from the Bureau of Standards of the United States and has consented to speak on the general subject of material standardisations.

Demand Impossible Says Dr. Wirth

(Reuter's Service)

Berlin, March 28.—In the Reichstag today, the Chancellor, Dr. Wirth, declared the Reparations commission's demand for the imposition of 60,000,000 marks fresh taxation was absolutely impossible.

Dr. Wirth, while accepting many of the views expressed by the Reparations Commission, said that the latter apparently ignored the importance of the German taxation reforms, particularly of the compulsory loan. He dwelt on the unforseen burden in consequent of the exchange conditions which had upset the whole budget plan and had increased the deficit in the budget from 28,000,000,000 to 220,000,000,000 marks. He protested most emphatically against the principle of Allied control in assessment and collection of taxation.

The newspaper, Die Zeit, states that M. Laurent, the French Ambassador to Germany, is resigning owing to his disagreement with the French policy, and especially the Reparations Commission's note.

These tablets contain no pepsin but strengthen the stomach and enable it to digest the food naturally.

Referring to the land armaments, he said that the United States did not propose further to reduce her army as long as the attitude of France made it apparent that there was nothing more to be done in that direction.

Senators Underwood, Hitchcock and Lodge supported the Treaty. Senator Lodge scouted an opponent's suggestion that a disparity of 20 percent in fleet strength existed in favor of Great Britain.

DR. SCHURMAN LEAVES ON TRIP TO HANGCHOW

American Minister And Party Return Friday; To Be Given Dinner

Dr. Jacob G. Schurman, American Minister, Mrs. Schurman and Miss Barbara Schurman left yesterday morning for Hangchow, accompanied by Mr. S. K. Chen of the Bureau of Foreign Affairs, Mrs. C. T. Waung and Miss Chen, and will return to Shanghai on Friday.

They were tendered a dinner at Hangchow last night by Tuchun Lu Yung-hsiang and today will be taken on a sightseeing tour in the country about the Chekiang capital.

Word received from the Minister yesterday stated that he would be unable to attend the tiffin arranged for Friday noon by the American University Club, because he will not return in time for it. On Friday evening Dr. Schurman and members of the American Consular staff will be guests of honor at a dinner to be given at the Naval Club, 102 Bubbling Well Road. The hosts at the dinner will be General Ho Feng-lin, Defense Commissioner of Shanghai; Admiral Tsiang Tseng, Chief of the Admiralty; Mr. C. F. Hsu, Special Commissioner of Foreign Affairs; Mr. Wang Keng-ting, Taoyin of Shanghai; Mr. Hsu Kuo-liang, Chief of the Woosung and Shanghai Constabulary, and Mr. Shen Pao-chang, Magistrate of the Shanghai City.

The Chinese newspapers of Shanghai received Minister Schurman's speech of Tuesday night at the Astor House with much acclaim, editors pointing out in their comment upon it that in advocating an immediate house-cleaning by the Chinese the Minister had "again given the Chinese food for thought and opportunity for action."

over passed, and that artisans guided by their creative instinct will never again produce the type of delicate beauty that was lost in the blast of retribution. Machinery has crowded out the manual worker in a great part of the civilised world; even where he still exists, his work is less fine, less painstaking than it was even a century ago. The embroideries produced in China today are as coarse as fish-nets compared to those of yesterday. Even the little carved wooden men of a few decades ago have countenances with character in every wrinkle, while the rough-hewn figures of the present are scarcely recognisable as the figures of human beings. It is evident that the treasures of the old Summer Palace cannot be replaced short of resuscitating an epoch.

The fragmentary ruins of Yuen Ming Yuen are a few miles outside of Peking, within sight of the gleaming yellow tiles of the new Summer Palace on one side and of the modern buildings of Tsing Hua on the other. One enters through a delapidated red gate, hires a straw-sandalled guide, inadvertently acquires an escort of volunteers, and sets out over the rocky path that leads to the shattered paradise of Chien Lung. For the first li there is nothing to draw out the notebook of even the most diary-ridden traveler. One sees a curved bridge or two over a mere gash in the rolling plain that was once a stream fed by the Jade Fountain, the ruins of an exquisite marble fountain, a few jumbled piles here mangled out of the remotest likeness to a building, and some bare hummocks which suggest somehow that they were once the sites of habitations. The uneven, treeless plain, the little heaps of battered stone, and the trenchlike meanderings of the dry stream-bed give the landscape a semblance to the devastated area in France.

BUILDING RUINS

Near the end of the second li one climbs to the crest of a little hill and finds there the first real indications of the existence of Yuen Ming Yuen. Within short walking distance of each other are the remains of a series of buildings, each one still revealing in its crumbling marble the influence of Versailles and the utter absence of typical Chinese architecture. There are prone marble columns, some bare except for the capital and others covered with a tracery of white leaves. There are the remnants of majestic horseshoe-shaped staircases leading up to nothing; basins of fountains curved like shells; and marble troughs covered by chiselled vines and budding flowers. No one, viewing these ruins apart from their environment, would dream that they were once part of the home of a Chinese Emperor. They belong rightly in Frascati, in the premises of the Villa d'Este, or somewhere in the vicinity of Fontainebleau. One can marvel only at the imitative ability of the Chinese and the many-sided talents of the Jesuits—the brotherhood that made astronomical instruments, held high posts on the Board of Mathematics, introduced half a dozen sciences from the West, and even taught their converts to make typical French clocks, ornamented by medallions of Dresden shepherdesses and satin-breeched courtiers.

In a few years even the present remains of Yuen Ming Yuen will be little more than a tradition. Bit by bit the Chinese are finishing the work of destruction by carting off what the dynamite blast happened to spare. Just beyond the building that is honeycombed underneath by dungeons we saw a delapidated country hut and a donkey taking his evening meal out of a delicately carved marble box. In front of a house on the high-road to the village we saw three or four children tumbling in and out of a white trough that was once part of Father Benoist's intricate water-system. The days are not far off when the Bright Gardens, which once housed the strange combination of a Chinese court life in a background suitable to Louis XIV, will exist only for the historian.

Children Cry for Fletcher's

CASTORIA

Fletcher's Castoria is particularly a preparation for Infants and Children made agreeable to the taste, acceptable to the stomach and pleasant in its action. It has been in use for over thirty years and has always been one of the most highly esteemed of all cathartic preparations. It has one great advantage over other preparations of its kind in that while it opens the organs readily and completely, it does not have a tendency to produce subsequent constipation so much to be dreaded.

It was only after years of research in the fields of herbs and roots for a combination of purely vegetable matter that would have all the virtues of Castor Oil, without its disagreeable, nauseating properties, especially when used for infants or children, that the formula used in Fletcher's Castoria was found, and which for over 30 years has proven its worth. Try it.

Save the Babies.

Infantry mortality is something frightful. We can hardly realise that of all the children born in ivilised countries, twenty-two per cent., or nearly one quarter die before they reach one year, thirty-seven per cent., or more than one-third, before they are five, and one half before they are fifteen! We do not hesitate to say that a timely use of Castoria would save many of these precious lives. Neither do we hesitate to say that many of these infantile deaths are occasioned by the use of narcotic preparations. Drops, tinctures and soothing syrups sold for children's complaints contain more or less opium or morphine. They are, in considerable quantities, deadly poisons. In any quantity, they stupefy, retard circulation and lead to congestion, sickness, death. To avoid any possibility of giving your child opiates, or narcotics of any kind, keep Fletcher's Castoria in the house, and Save the Babies.

POMEROY SUES GARNER, QUELCH IN BRITISH COURT

Hearing of a claim for Yen 2,000, G. $8,400, Canadian $1,454 and Tls. 7,000 brought against Mr. Henry Quelch, proprietor of Garner, Quelch and Co., by Mr. P. E. Pomeroy, an American citizen, was begun yesterday before Judge Peter Grain in the British Supreme Court.

The plaintiff's claim, as set forth, is for G. $4,000 alleged due from defendant as purchase price for a piece of land in Kasler, British Columbia; Yen 2,000, Canadian $1,454 and G. $2,400 alleged to have been spent in the firm's interest on a trip to Canada and the States; Tls. 5,000 as bonus and Tls. 2,000 for alleged wrongful dismissal.

Mr. Tycho Wing, appearing with Mr. C. P. Holcomb for the plaintiff, stated that as regarded the Canadian property the agreement of sale was concluded February 28, 1920 and defendant took possession in April of that year, but to date had failed to make payment. The defendant, counsel continued, left Shanghai March 1, 1920, when plaintiff took charge of the office, it being an implied term of the contract that the latter should make disbursements on behalf of the firm as he thought fit. Defendant on leaving had assured the plaintiff that on his return if business was satisfactory he would pay him Tls. 5,000 and he was to receive reasonable notice, but his services were dispensed with at a month's notice. Counsel submitted that reasonable notice implied at least six months.

Under the engagement plaintiff was to receive $400 a month plus 3 percent on all sales of a certain brand of liquors and one percent on all other brands handled by the company. A number of firms were pressing for payment, counsel said, when the defendant left Shanghai. The plaintiff had received instructions not to draw more than $700 in any month for himself and although he had overdrawn to some extent, counsel submitted, there was ample security in view of the fact that defendant had not paid for the land. Notice of the termination of his services were given plaintiff on April 28, 1921.

The defence was that Mr. Pomeroy's services were dispensed with by reason of the fact that he had misconducted himself in the service by wilfully disobeying the express orders of the defendant and had taken with him to Canada goods of the defendant valued at Canadian $30,162 with a view, the defendant submitted, of making a secret profit for himself on their sale.

Mr. Macdonald appeared for the defendant.

Y.M.C.A. HOLDS ANNUAL MEETING

The annual meeting of the members of the Y.M.C.A. was held Tuesday evening in the dining room of the Association. After dinner the business session was opened, Mr. U. P. Ngai of the Customs was elected Chairman of the meeting and W. M. Sun of the Chung Hwa Book Co. secretary.

General Secretary S. K. Tsao reported the activities for the past year pointing out the progress made in all departments, particularly in the student and industrial departments. These lines of work are carried on largely outside the Association building and in behalf of many who are not members of the Association.

The financial condition of the Association was satisfactory as shown in the audited report. The total receipts for the year were $183,442.70.

During the past year the Association has purchased a well located piece of ground near the corner of Boulevard de Montigny and Rue de Consulat as the site for the first branch buildings which it is hoped to erect within the near future.

The nine, who are at Shantung Road Hospital, are suffering from burns, the inhalation of gas fumes and from cuts and bruises received during the mad battle to escape which occurred in the small fore peak compartment of the vessel after one of the men had collapsed while half-way through the manhole and blocked his comrades' course to the open air.

At the recent meeting of the Municipal Council deep expressions of sorrow over the death of Sir Everard Fraser were expressed by Mr. A. Brooke Smith, Chairman, who made touching reference to past activities of the late Consul-General saying "his sympathetic and kindly assistance and sound advice always had been so readily given on the frequent occasions on which the Council had had to consult him in regard to Municipal affairs."

Oil pumps in automobiles sometimes freeze up in very cold weather.

The Buick oil pump is so designed that, should the pump gears be held immovable through freezing, the shaft revolves within the gear. The heat thus generated thaws out the frozen parts, restoring gear action and oil flow to normal.

Decisive Intercollegiate Basketball Game Tonight; St. John's Versus Nanyang

S. J. U. May Tie Soochow And Shanghai College For First Place

The last important game of the East China Intercollegiate Basketball association schedule will be played this evening at the St. John's University between the S. J. U. five and the quintet from Nanyang College. The game will decide whether or not St. John's will wind up the season in a three-cornered tie for first position, or fall back to a tie with Nanyang for second honors while Soochow and Shanghai College share first place.

The game is ranked by Chinese Students and foreign basketball fans alike as one of the most important of the season. St. John's has always been rated as a first-place team, and with Nanyang showing evidence of added strength their prospects of finishing up where the dope has placed them becomes problematical. Whichever way the game goes however a most interesting situation will result with the making of the final table after tonight's game.

Shanghai College and Soochow already are tied for first position with four games won and one lost. St. John's should they win tonight will have the same record, while Nanyang will drop to undisputed possession of fourth position, with Nanking University and the S. E. U. each tied in last position with none won and four lost.

Followers of the Chinese college basketball tournament already are figuring on the play-off for the honors for the various positions in the final standings. They feel that the basketball title must not be allowed to rest in a tie, between two or three colleges as was the Soccer football championship.

Students already are asking that Soochow and Shanghai play off for first place honors, and should St. John's win tonight, a three cornered play-off is expected. Should St. John's lose to Nanyang tonight however, a play-off is expected for third position.

Tonight's game commences at 8 o'clock. Mr. T. T. Zee will act as referee. A big gallery of spectators is expected.

BAER SAYS 'BUGS' Baer:

FOWLER HAD FAMOUS THUMB

When Trouble Started, Champ Always Had An Option On An Exit

BY "BUGS" BAER

Old Hollow Top:

Gink Fowler was noodles in the song compared to Terry Fyer, who knokkerried Gink with a sour left jab that curdled Gink's future.

Gink was out so long that his relatives collected his insurance.

Terry Slapped Gink so high in the air that it looked like a trapeze act.

Never yours,

BEAN.

We admit that at one time in his career Gink Fowler pulled the wrong number out of the hat.

But a good soldier never looks back.

Neither does a good chauffeur.

A lot of people take special delight in knocking a man when he is down. We admit that Gink Fowler was a canvas tourist, but he was game as a pebble, whatever that means.

How about the time that Gink fought The Glutt for one hundred rounds and a prologue? They started when they were orphans and fought 'emselves right into the Old Folks' Home, where finally Gink won a championship by default.

Gink was meaner than a wasp wasting his genius and stinger on an iron doorknob. But he was a fair fighter and never kicked a man twice the same way. He had a thousand thumps and used to carry a catalogue of slams around in the ring.

When he was puzzled, he would open the catalogue on Page 675, where it told all about sledgehammers and give The Glutt his famous mallet thump. That was a peach of a wallop until The Glutt got to like it.

Finally, a guy dusted into Roughtown who claimed a championship. He said he wasn't any good with his knuckles or his fists, but he was the thumb champion of the world.

Gink didn't know what it was all about, but he brooked no rivals. He immediately claimed the heavyweight thumb championship, and the two boys went at it tooth and thumbnails.

Gink thumbed his way to victory at thumbicuffs, which was different from fisticuffs. Then the other guy claimed the lightweight thumb belt.

Gink was so angry that he turned pale with something. He immediately started in to make his thumb do weight.

There was a thousand grand forfeit for thumbweight. Gink was an ounce over, when he decided to try heroic methods. Six lions broke their teeth on his thumb before they bit it down to the weight limit.

Again Gink knocked the other lad out with a straight left jab with his thumb, and as the Roughtown burglars came out for the evening, peace once more settled over the smiling little hamlet.

VETERAN PONIES TO BE OUT FOR MEET SATURDAY

The second and third extra race meetings, the best of the trial runs for the big Spring Race Meeting are scheduled for Saturday, April 1, and April 8. Nine races are carded each day. The lists include a hurdle, a steeplechase, three handicaps, a selling and three other races for each day. Some of Shanghai's best ponies are out for the meets.

Saturday's first race, the hurdle for all China ponies has such horses as The Prelate, Wee Mac, Tivoli, Typhoon, Wild Cat, and Henry Morris' "field" horses entered. The race is bound to be good. The steeplechase which follows has Wild Chance, Letchfield, Old Bill and Typhoon entered. The jumps go around Loong Fei Water Jump, once around and in.

In the Lincoln handicap, the fourth race, Winsome and Hasty has a good pair entered: The Heron and the Peacock, though Rio Negro, Rouble, Guldborg, Old Bill and Jet also are competent for places.

The Robin should qualify high up in the Doncaster handicap "A" class, against its stable mate The Peacock, and San Juan, Rio Negro, and Kewiki. The first named pony has only run twice but always has finished closing up, once third, and again second.

Other races are ordinary, though with fine handicapping keen competitions are assured. The meeting in whole is certain to give the Shanghai public a chance at final form doping for the big spring meeting.

Sporting Editor's Letter Box

Sporting Editor: THE CHINA PRESS:

Dear Sir: I shall be obliged if you will make public the fact that the School team and the school disassociate themselves entirely from the letter which appeared in the CHINA PRESS yesterday, signed by "A School Boy."

The School team have nothing but good feeling and respect for the Club team who met them on Saturday and to a man, they would congratulate them on the hard, clean, and above all, sporting game, which they played.

Immediately after the match the Club were the first to congratulate the School. They did so frankly and generously, and the School appreciate their good spirit, and certainly reciprocate their good wishes.

It now appears that the letter of "A School Boy" was written by a small boy of the School who aspired to be the champion of his school against the errors of hard worked reporters; he thought he was doing a good act, whereas he was doing really a very mischievous one.

I cannot help expressing our regret that the letter of a young schoolboy should have been published so readily; it is a young schoolboy's letter and I trust it will be treated as such by all who read it. I am, Yours,

D. DRAKE.

Hockey Interporters Win Over Sikhs XI 7-1 With Play That Promises Well

Probables For Tientsin And Peking Games Show Big Improvement

A midweek practice held by the selected Interport hockey team which will journey to Tientsin next month to meet the eleven of that city and the team from the capitol showed Shanghai's Probable eleven to the best advantage since the first attempt at selecting a team was made. They won over the strong Sikh eleven by a score of 7-1.

Yesterday's team was practically the same as that which lost at 0-3 to The Rest on the trial held on the Polo Ground last Saturday. Only Harvie was absent, and his place was filled nicely by Healey.

The Sikhs scored the first goal, a short time after the opening of play. Bishan Singh, the fast inside left of the Indian team shot the goal, and Jones never had a chance to knock it down. The goal however was the only one of the game for the Sikhs, and the only time that the Interporters' net was seriously threatened.

The Selected team followed soon after with the equaliser, and by half time had doubled the score. In the second half they ran away with the play, adding five more goals to their count.

Leitao at outside right for the Interporters played an excellent game, taking the ball down the field on his stick for long runs. His work was largely responsible for the piling up of the one-sided score. Healey also was good in his substitution for Harvie. Other members of the team: Jones, Cobb, Mann, Faers, Oliveira, Richardson, Encarnacao, Morgan and Tilley all showed good interport class.

The Probable team yesterday showed to better advantage than at any time this season. With two practice matches behind them, the men from the various clubs got together for their first bits of real team work. Their attack and their defense was of first quality. Should the team develop in proportion with its next few practice trials they are certain to give Tientsin and Peking the hardest games ever seen up North.

The Selected team plays again on Saturday, against a good strong eleven, perhaps to be called The Rest, to be selected from the best of the remaining players.

"Health Better than it has been for Years."

Our portrait is of Mrs. WOODROW, of 56, Robinson Road, Tooting, London, England, whose husband writes:

"My wife has suffered very badly for the past four or five years with Piles, being unable to sleep at night or get any relief during the day. She tried several advertised remedies, none of which did her any good. Some three weeks ago she thought she would try 'Clarke's Blood Mixture,' and before she had taken half a bottle she was better, and by the time she had finished the second bottle she was quite cured. She can now sleep well, eat well, and get about her work, and her general health is better than it has been for years." In a further letter some eight months later Mr. Woodrow writes: "I am pleased to say that since my wife's cure of Piles in September, 1918, there has been no sign of return of the trouble."

CLARKE'S BLOOD MIXTURE, by reason of its remarkable blood purifying properties, can be relied upon to give speedy relief and lasting benefit in cases of Eczema, Bad Legs, Abscesses, Ulcers, Boils, Pimples, Eruptions, Piles, Glandular Swellings, Rheumatism, Sciatica, Gout. March 29, 1922

Spot and forward bar silver were each up ⅛d. in London yesterday.

The New York price advanced to 65 cents, and the London-New York cross rate to 436¾.

The only change in the official quotations today was a rise in the Yen rate to 68½.

Our market was steady throughout the morning and, in fact, closed on the firm side.

Business in Sterling was done at 3-3⅜ for March and 3-3⅜ for April-May.

Gold Dollars were done at 72½ for March, 72⅝ for April and 72¼ for May.

However, at the close there were good sellers at these rates.

There was again very little business passing today.

India bought silver in London yesterday and the market there is reported as being steady, as is also the New York market.

IODISED THROAT TABLETS
Allay all irritation

THE General Public is hereby notified that supplies of "IXL" IODISED THROAT TABLETS, the remarkable new throat remedy that is now being so largely and successfully prescribed by physicians in Great Britain, are now being made available for residents in China.

Representing the latest advance in scientific throat medication, these tablets, by reason of their Iodine content, are indubitably superior to any other pastilles or tablets that have yet been evolved by scientific research.

Their use is positively indicated in all cases of Sore and Ulcerated Throat, Hoarseness, Quinsy, Throat Catarrh, Tonsilitis, Laryngitis, etc.

As a highly efficient throat disinfectant when epidemics are rife, IODISED THROAT TABLETS indoubtedly excel any other preparation yet put upon the market.

No malignant Diptheria, Influenza, or other germ can find lodgement on a membranous surface that has been subjected to the peculiar antiseptic influences of these tablets.

Pleasant to the palate, and allaying all irritation, each tablet, as it slowly dissolves in the mouth, releases, in harmonious combination with other fine quality medicaments, a specific quantity of the pure Tincture of Iodine, to soothe, heal, and sterilize the inflamed area.

WARNING:—All cartons of the genuine and original IODISED THROAT TABLETS bear the "IXL" trade-mark, and each tablet is embossed with the letter "A." Reject feeble substitutes.

All first-class chemists supply "IXL" IODISED THROAT TABLETS.

The Futility Of Assassination

THE world is shocked at intervals by the acts or attempted acts of political assassins, the degree of shock being in approximate ratio to the prominence of the victim or intended victim, and the causes, real or fancied, on which the act was predicated. The fact that such acts invariably react with unfavorable violence on the public mind is sufficient evidence that they are universally deplored. All sane men agree that political assassinations are morally indefensible, and that, as a practical means to an end, they are either ineffectual or defeat their own ends. Nowhere, except among the mentally unbalanced, are such methods approved, and of all social pariahs the assassin is the most scorned.

Assassination and attempts thereat always are incidental to political movements, and such acts are worthy of consideration only insofar as they affect these movements. In the abstract, assassination is utterly deplorable, always; but after an assassination is committed there arises a condition that is the antithesis of the abstract—a condition of cold hard fact that has to be dealt with and on occasion, dealt with summarily. On these occasions it is entirely fitting and proper to examine into the backgrounds that gave rise to the act or acts of violence, and to inquire whether anything can be done to prevent their repetition.

That, in fact, is the first thing normal men always think of after an assassination, or an attempt at assassination. What caused this thing, primarily? What measure of justification was there for it? These and similar questions are asked, and properly so.

Sometimes the act of desperation is conceived in a crazed brain of an individual, in which event the orderly community which suffers from his raahness has but one duty to perform, namely, to punish the perpetrator of the crime or attempted crime as befits the degree of criminality of his deed.

It is in this category that the attempted assassination of General Baron Tanaka fits. The men who tried to kill him apparently acted as individuals, and as individuals, they must suffer. That they may have been crazed by wrongs inflicted upon their native land by the stronger nation of which General Tanaka is a responsible officer makes no difference whatever. Korean patriots, having a sane and sincere love for their country, would be first to admit this. They would be first to deplore such an act for the good reason, well understood by them, that their national aspirations are hampered, rather than helped, by such misdeeds.

Assassins have no right, either in law or in morals, to set about on their own accord to avenge wrongs, personal or political. Except for this universally recognised inhibition we would have mentally unbalanced individuals everywhere shooting down responsible officers of government, for real or fancied wrong, and that, of course, would be worse than savagery, worse than anarchy. If civilisation did not frown upon that sort of thing no man would be safe, in either public or private life.

This could have been written, and was written, thousands of times, in newspapers, magazines and books, and spoken from platforms, rostrums and pulpits all over the civilised world, previous to Tuesday's attempt on General Baron Tanaka's life, and every sane man and woman who read or listened agreed with it thoroughly.

With the flash of the assassin's pistol, as previously stated, all theories and all abstractions vanished, and a condition of cold fact remained. This condition of fact cannot be ignored, unless, ostrich like, we wish to bury our heads in the sand. Concerning the minor element of that fact, namely, the assassin himself, we can rest assured that he will be dealt with properly, and the earnest wish of all of us that he may find himself dangling at the business end of a stout length of good Japanese hemp, or the equivalent thereof, undoubtably will be gratified in due time.

Concerning the major element of that fact, namely, the aggression of a stong nation against a weaker one, that, it cannot be denied, is a matter that may legitimately be inquired into by the rest of us, for the good and sufficient reason that our interests are vitally involved.

In raising this point we are not "making it our business." We are not meddling. We are not interfering with the legitimate interests of other people. On the contrary, we are asking, simply, whether the aggression of a strong neighbor nation, if carried out with reference to a weak neighbor nation, involves dangers of embroiling us in particular or the world at large in an international conflict. We are asking, in other words, whether such an attitude is likely, ultimately, to bring about another war.

Remembering how nations, apparently remote and uninvolved, were sucked into the vortex of the Great War, this is a strictly legitimate inquiry.

An assassination or attempted assassination after the fact is a vastly different thing from such an act or attempted act before the fact. All of us would prefer that some statute could be written, or preventative invoked, that would guarantee the world forever against assassination, or attempts thereat, but since it is obvious that no such guarantee is available, or ever will be, we simply have to deal with such acts, and their causes, after their eruption.

To understand the futility of assassination, one has only to refer to certain historic episodes in comparatively recent history. Take, for example, the assassination of the crew of the battleship Maine by a lunatic who resented what he regarded as illegal interference on the part of America in Cuban affairs. Did his assassination of the Maine crew move the United States to withdraw from that troubled island? On the contrary, it had an effect diametrically opposite to what the assassin intended, as the world knows.

Did the crack of the Serbian student's pistol at Sarejevo bring about any alleviation of his homeland's sufferings from the hand of the Hapsburgs? It did, indeed, but hardly in the manner conceived in his disordered mind.

The first Speaker of the Chinese Parliament was assassinated here in Shanghai on the night he boarded a train for Peking, with no other result than that China lost a great intellect. In 1915 a local defense commissioner was murdered in front of the Astor House, for political reasons, with no resultant fundamental change in the orderly institutions of which has was a representative.

Lenine, head of the present Soviet government in Russia, is as full of bullets, pegged at him by assassins, as he ever was of revolutionary ideas, and yet none of the holes that were punched into him by his political enemies ever was utilised as an exit for a single one of the political notions to which his foes took exception.

These instances might be multiplied indefinitely to prove, if such proof were necessary, that nothing is more futile than assassination for political motives. One tall tree falls in the gale, but the forest stands, and political movements advance or recede in response to other and saner motivating forces, never because of bullets fired by assassins.

Moral and righteous indignation, expressed in orderly manner through orderly methods, is and will remain, the greatest force for the advancement of free government.

The Pneumonia Month.

March is a typical pneumonia month and usually gives a high rate of mortality for the disease. After a long and hard winter, the system loses much of its resistance and people grow careless. When every cold, no matter how slight, is given prompt and intelligent attention, there is much less danger of pneumonia. It should be borne in mind that pneumonia is a germ disease and breeds in the throat. Chamberlain's Cough Remedy is an expectorant and cleans out the germ ladened mucus and not only cures a cold but prevents its resulting in pneumonia. It is pleasant to take. Children take it willingly. Sold Everywhere

France Spends Less Than U. S. On Army, Says Lauzanne

BY STEPHANE LAUZANNE
(Editor in Chief of Le Matin, Paris)

The United States has passed a resolution presented by Senator Medill McCormick inviting Secretary Hughes to provide the Senate with full information regarding the military expenditures of European governments and the effect of such expenditures on European indebtedness toward the United States.

Of course, the resolution caused a good deal of comment in France. "Why does the Senate care only about military expenditures and not about naval expenditures?" many Frenchmen asked me. "Why only about money set aside for the upkeep of soldiers and fortifications, and why doesn't the Senate ask about money set aside for the upkeep of sailors and capital ships?"

I do not know what to answer. What I do know very well is that the figures asked for by Senator McCormick are extremely easy to give at least so far as the French Republic is concerned.

There is no mystery about them, nor is there any secrecy. They are known, they are public. They are to be found at length in the national budget which recently was voted by both chambers. Credits granted the French Ministry of War for the year 1922 amount to exactly 2,709,345,454 francs—namely, 2,960,875,269 francs for the ordinary and permanent expenditures of the French army, and 748,470,185 for exceptional and extraordinary expenditures resulting from hostilities in the Near East.

In all good justice it is right to deduct the last figure, representing exceptional outlays—for the name itself indicates these expenses to be exceptional and that they will fall to zero as soon as peace is established in the Balkans and Asia Minor.

It is also proper to deduct from the extraordinary and permanent expenditures of the army 438,000,000 francs, which represent the cost of occupation of Morocco and the cost of military services established there; 225,000,000 francs, representing the cost of French colonial troops in Indo-China, Africa and Madagascar; 158,000,000 francs, representing the cost of the constabulary in France, and 1,700,000 representing the cost of constabulary for Alsace-Lorraine—for when one possesses colonies troops must be maintained to keep them in order, and when one has no army at all it is necessary to have a constabulary.

With these deductions made, it is seen that the French army will cost exactly the sum total of 2,139,485,269 francs to France in 1922; namely, about a twelfth part of the budget for the total expenditures of France, which exceed 25,000,000,000 francs.

France's land army and land armaments cost France 2,139,489,269 francs. Let us convert this sum into dollars. A dollar today being estimated at 12 francs, this represents $178,290,439. Now, if we look at the American budget we note that for the financial year 1921-1922 the expenditures of the army exceed $300,000,000, and that for the financial year 1916-1917—the last year preceding the entry of the United States into the war—these expenditures amounted to exactly $358,158,361.

France therefore spends much less on her land army than America, and she spends half of what America spent before the war. She spends also half of what England spent during the financial year 1921-1922, when the expenses of the British army exceeded $400,000,000, exactly 106,316,000 pounds sterling.

That settles the military expenditures of France, "but," wrote Senator McCormick in a cable sent to Paris, "the American taxpayer is conscious, patently conscious, that he is paying for military establishments in Europe."

If the American taxpayer is conscious of any such thing, he is wrong, at least in regard to France, because he is not paying a cent for the French army.

American taxpayers advanced France upward of $3,057,000,000 during the course of the war, which was not only France's war but which was also America's war, from April, 1917, to November, 1918. It was for munitions, guns, foodstuffs and shipping that the money given by the American taxpayer was used. However, France owes it, and she will never stop saying that she will pay, but there is one condition—that the money owed France be paid, too.

The American taxpayer is not the only creditor in the world. There is a much larger creditor than he—the French taxpayer. More than $16,000,000,000 is due him. Germany, which willed the war, owes France, by virtue of a contract drawn up in the due form and bearing the signatures of seventeen civilised nations, more than $12,000,000,000. Russia, according to all the commercial rules of the world owes France more than $4,000,000,000.

So long as Germany and Russia won't pay a cent to France it will be extremely hard for France to pay America. The interests of American and French taxpayers are practically inseparable. Let American taxpayers help the French taxpayer collect $12,000,000,000 due from Germany and it will bring in the $3,000,000,000 due America. By all means, do not let the American taxpayer encourage Germany not to pay.

An Odd Question Or Two Answered

BY GARETT P. SERVISS,
Famous Astronomer and Writer on Scientific Subjects of Popular Interest.

"Does the increase of population of people and domestic animals, more drainage, more planting of trees and more cultivation of the soil have any effect to make the Winters of Minnesota and the Northwest warmer than fifty years ago?

"Would the thermometer rise any if held ten rods above a half-section of land covered by people standing as close as possible? —M. H. B. Evan."

A great many people believe that the influences you mention have changed the climate not only in the Northwest but elsewhere. The meteorologists, however, say that their records and studies do not sanction such a view.

They affirm that such changes as occur are periodic, or cyclical; in character; i. e., they come about in a circular order, so that similar conditions recur after a greater or lesser interval of time, and they ascribe these variations to much more general causes than those that you speak of.

This view is supported by the fact that in the Eastern and seaboard States, where there have been no such revolutionary changes of agricultural conditions as Minnesota and other Northwestern States have witnessed, we find a similar opinion prevailing as to an alteration of climate, only here it is ascribed to some unknown, or undiscovered and more or less mysterious, cause, or left for the meteorologist to explain. And, go where you will, either in America or abroad, you find an almost universal tendency to believe that the climate is not the same as it was in childhood, or in the days of the fathers and grandfathers.

This is partly due to psychological peculiarities, and partly to hasty observation, or incorrect inference from actual facts. At the same time it will not do to affirm that no perceptible influence is exerted on the weather by wide alterations in the distribution and quantity of the surface water and vegation. These have an inevitable influence upon the local state of the atmosphere but, as we shall see when we come to your second question, such influences must be confined in area.

If we distinguish as we should do between climate and weather we may admit that extensive irrigation and cultivation may locally affect the weather without a corresponding effect upon the climate. Climate, according to R. de C. Ward's definition, is the average condition of the atmosphere, while "weather denotes a single occurrence or event in the series of atmospheric conditions which make up climate."

But the meteorologists would probably hold that even the amount of influence above admitted as possible or probable from tree planting cultivation, irrigation, etc., does not really exist. They map the atmosphere of the earth as if it were made up of aerial mountains and valleys ("highs" and "lows") with great currents flowing like vast fluid sheets around and above and under and over one another, and this immense system is shown shifting regularly northward and southward with the swing of the sun, which governs the seasons.

That variations occur they admit, as already stated, but these variations are ascribed not to any petty changes that little man can produce by his interference, but to great general causes, of which fluctuations in the radiation of the sun are the grand, common source.

Your second question is interesting as a curiosity. I wonder if you have calculated how many people "standing as close as possible" it would take to cover a half section of land. A half section is half a square mile. In half a square mile there are 13,939,200 square feet. Not to crowd our crowd quite as close as sardines, suppose that we give each person a space of two square feet—not two feet square, but two feet one way and one foot the other. Then it takes 6,969,600 persons to cover the half section.

Now you hang the thermometer ten rods (165 feet) above their heads; will the mercury rise from the heat of the crowd below? Let us see. The internal heat of the human body is nearly 100 degrees Fahrenheit, and unless the air is already equally warm or warmer, it will absorb the heat from the bodies below.

Suppose each finally gives to the air the whole amount of heat that it contains at the moment when the experiment starts; through how great a volume of air would the heat be distributed? Up to the height of 165 feet, excluding the space occupied by the bodies, there are about 2,000,000,000 cubic feet of air. That makes about 300 cubic feet for each person. Giving three cubic feet to the average body, we see that each person would have to warm a volume of air 100 times larger than himself; in other words his bodily heat distributed through that amount of air would raise its temperature one degree.

So much, then the thermometer might rise—provided that there was no escape of heat into air lying outside the space considered. But if the air were confined the increase of temperature would really be greater, because each body would continue to keep up its heat as long as its vital machinery operated and its internal supply of fuel was not exhausted. Accordingly there would be accumulation of heat in the adjacent air.

If it was a very still day there would be something approaching to the supposed confinement of the air. But there could be no noticeable accumulation of heat if the air around and above the area of the experiment came into the play, though even then the thermometer would probably show a rise, especially if it was over the middle of the crowd.
